Spann played with David Bowie during the run-up to the rock legend's final album, the magnificent "Blackstar".

"A mutual friend introduced me to Tony Visconti" Spann says, citing Bowie's frequent producer and arranger. "He'd gone to my site, I guess, and then called me one day, out of the blue." "We need a piano player who can play jazz, can play rock, but not jazz-rock. We don't want Chick Corea." I called him back and went into the studio the next morning."

Meeting David Bowie and working on song demos for "Blackstar" led Jack Spann to working with Milwaukee producer Gary Tanin (Sam Llanas, Daryl Stuermer, Roger Powell) and the making of Jack's first full length studio album "Time, Time, Time, Time, Time." Reviews have been overwhelmingly consistent for Spann's album. Quotes like: "Piano Powerhouse Jack Spann Puts Out a Mysterious, Kinetic Debut Album" and "[Jack's] own material spans from parlor pop, to creepy Americana, to labyrinthine art-rock with a theatrical flair," are accurate descriptors according to the artist.

Jack and producer Gary Tanin are currently completing Spann's second album - release date TBA soon.

Jack Spann and band are available the week of July 4th - July 8th for media interview and radio/TV with live performance segments.
